Hon. Glenn Youngkin Governor of Virginia Office of the Governor Patrick Henry Building, 3rd Floor 1111 East Broad Street Richmond, VA 23219

Re: Urgent Request Regarding School-Arranged Abortions in Fairfax County and Broader Violations of Abortion Restrictions

Dear Governor Youngkin:

The American Center for Law & Justice¹, is deeply troubled by the recent reports emerging about the Fairfax County school system. We write to commend the attention you and Attorney General Miyares have already given to this troubling development and to urge you to pursue every action necessary to address these potential criminal actions and to protect parental rights.

As you are aware, on August 6, 2025, a report surfaced that staff at Centreville High School in Fairfax County allegedly arranged—and may have paid—for abortions for underage students.²

These staff members made no attempt to inform the parents of the students to obtain their consent, in direct violation of Virginia law.³ We are encouraged by your direction of the Virginia State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation to undertake a full probe into the Fairfax County School District.⁴ However, given the seriousness of these allegations, we believe further action is warranted.

Earlier this year, school districts in Virginia and other states came under Department of Education scrutiny for violations of parental rights,⁵ leading to a directive requiring compliance with FERPA and PPRA.⁶ That directive was issued after "reports that state educational agencies and school divisions are hiding critical information from parents, such as . . . their mental and physical wellbeing." This new incident in Fairfax County reflects the same disregard for parental rights, the well-being of students, and Virginia law.

Fairfax County's own policy illustrates the problem. It states that "every effort shall be made to encourage and support students suspecting pregnancy to discuss their concerns with their parents or guardians." Yet despite Virginia's requirement that parental consent be obtained before a minor undergoes an abortion, the policy does not actually mandate parental notification. In practice, "every effort" creates no enforceable obligation, leaving staff free to undermine both parents and the law.

This raises serious questions not only about Fairfax County, but about school systems across Virginia. Are other school staff members aiding minors in circumventing parental involvement and state law? What additional policies allow staff to evade their legal duties to parents? Given the record of disregard already documented by the Department of Education, there is good reason to believe these problems are not isolated, but systemic.

Equally troubling, as of the time of writing this letter, there has been no reported investigation into the role of Falls Church Healthcare Center (FCHC), the abortion facility involved. If FCHC had followed the law and ensured parental consent, this controversy would not exist. Short of misrepresentation by school staff, there is no lawful explanation for how abortions could have been performed on minors without parental consent or judicial override. An investigation is needed to determine whether misrepresentation occurred and, if not, to hold FCHC accountable for violating the consent requirements of Va. Code Ann. § 16.1-241(W).

⁸ Minock, supra note 2 (emphasis added).

The ACLJ had long documented the abortion industry's repeated disregard for law and ethics—from the sale of aborted babies' body parts,⁹ to the murder factories of Kermit Gosnell,¹⁰ to the now common practice of shipping abortion pills into states that have banned them; the abortion industry is riddled with practices both illegal and harmful to the women and girls these facilities claim to care about. This issue in Fairfax County is yet another manifestation of such practices.

For the above reasons, we respectfully request that you 1) direct the appropriate agencies to initiate an investigation into Virginia school systems to ensure that parental rights are not being violated, and 2) likewise direct an investigation into the involvement and legal compliance of FCHC in this matter.

Thank you for your attention to this pressing issue. The ACLJ stands ready to assist in whatever way possible.

Respectfully,
