and/or former Government official(s) and employee(s) concerning the Marine Corps’ Decision ordering the company, Shields of Strength (“SoS”), to remove all biblical references from the products it offers to soldiers.

Background

This Background provides certain relevant contextual information, to the extent known, that contributes to the reasonableness of the records sought, as contemplated by DoD FOIA regulation 32 C.F.R. 286.5(a).

A brief background of the company, SoS, follows.

It was December 1998 that the first Shields of Strength were placed in a store. They sold well enough that by 2001, stores across the country were carrying them and on one fateful day they caught the eye of Colonel David Dodd. . . . When he contacted Kenny and Tammie about buying some in bulk they graciously gave Colonel Dodd 500 Shields for his combat-ready troops.

Born that day was a lifelong friendship and relationship between Shields of Strength and the military. The most popular “tag” for most soldiers was emblazoned with the U.S. Flag and engraved with Joshua 1:9. It’s this “tag” that made its way to a young Army Captain named Russell Rippetoe. . . .

In 2003, while serving in Iraq, Captain Rippetoe was killed in action while wearing a Shield of Strength. He was the first American casualty of Operation Iraqi Freedom to be laid to rest at Arlington National Cemetery.

The following month, during the 2003 Memorial Day Ceremony at Arlington National Cemetery, President Bush referenced the dog tag Captain Rippetoe was wearing and read the scripture engraved on it. It was a surreal moment for Kenny and his family and they had no idea and no way to prepare for the media storm to come. . . .

One call Kenny didn’t miss, however, was from Joe Rippetoe, Russell Rippetoe’s father. Joe, who like his son was a veteran of war, was so taken by the Shield of Strength his son had worn that he wanted to make sure that each of the other soldiers from Russell’s unit had one. . . .

Since that time Kenny and Tammie have made over four million of the dog tags and have given hundreds of thousands of them to the U.S. military as well as other ministries. In fact, Stephen Mansfield wrote in his book, Faith of the American Soldier, “aside from the official insignias they wear, [the SOS dogtag] is the emblem most often carried by members of the military in Afghanistan and Iraq.”

According to reports, “[i]n 2011, the Marine Corps first notified SoS it would either need to obtain a license in order to continue selling Marine Corps-themed products, or alternatively, SoS could sell products so long as it did not promote those products as being licensed by the Marine Corps.”

Also according to reports, on or about August 16, 2018, the Marine Corps Trademark Licensing Office “issued a license to SoS, and it began producing Marine Corps-themed items in accordance with its license.”

On or about July 8, 2019, the Military Religious Freedom Foundation (“MRFF”), sent a letter to the office of the USMC Trademark and Licensing Program, demanding, among other things, that the USMC “immediately revoke and cancel the current approval for ‘Shields of Strength’ to continue using the official USMC emblem on any and/or all of its religious items for sale.”

According to reports, on or about July 11, 2019, Mr. Philip Greene, USMC Trademark Counsel, “immediately complied with the MRFF’s demands and sent a cease and desist notice to Mr. Vaughan.”

To the best of the Requestor’s knowledge and belief, this Request seeks records of which the USMC, the Marine Corps Trademark Licensing Office, the Office of Counsel for the Commandant of the Marine Corps, the Marine Corps Exchange, the Marine Corps Chaplains, the Marine Corps Judge Advocate Division, the Marine Corps System Command, the Marine Corps Logistics Command, the Marine Corps Forces Command, the Marine Corps Forces Central Command, the Marine Corps Forces, South, the Marine Corps Forces, Pacific, the Marine Forces Europe and Africa, the Marine Corps Forces Korea, and the Marine Corps Forces Reserve, would most likely be custodians.
